

Call for Proposals

If you have an idea for an event, we welcome proposals from regional members. Our goal is to sponsor events in different parts of the region, to benefit the greatest possible number of members. Such events will be organized by members and supported with regional financial and promotional assistance, provided that the event is open to any regional member. Graduate students with a faculty mentor are eligible to apply. We have set a rolling deadline to make it possible to submit an application at any time. If you have an idea or inquiry and want feedback, please contact Regionally Elected Director Rebecca Sachs Norris at rsachs@nemaar.org. This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it. Proposals should be sent directly to proposals@nemaar.org. This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it.

Upcoming Events

There will be a NEMAAR cosponsored event for graduate students entitled Theological Times: A Gathering for Doctoral Students of Theology in Boston, Massachusetts, February 18–19, 2011. This gathering will critically and self-reflexively explore theology as it is being practiced, taught, and creatively rethought. In the process, the gathering will strengthen and augment our collaborative community of emerging theological scholars. All doctoral students who understand themselves to do theology (however conceived) are encouraged to attend. For more information, please visit our website or contact Hannah Hofheinz at hhofheinz@nemaar.org. This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it. We are grateful to NEMAAR for supporting this event, and hope that many of you will join us!

Cosponsoring Conferences

NEMAAR will function as a cosponsor of conferences proposed by members around the region. NEMAAR's contribution will involve grants of up to $800 to help support conference-related costs. Proposals should be sent to conferences@nemaar.org. This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it, and should include a conference title, an abstract, a list of projected speakers, schedule, contact person, and a budget that indicates how the NEMAAR grant will be used. If submitted by graduate students, a faculty mentor must be identified. Proposals have a rolling deadline.

Teaching Workshops

The topics of greatest interest to our members include course development and teaching skills. If you would like to organize a teaching workshop, NEMAAR will provide grants of up to $800 to help support conference-related costs. Proposals should be sent to [\[redacted\]](mailto: [redacted]). This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it, and should include a workshop title, abstract, list of projected speakers and/or facilitators, schedule, contact person, and a budget that indicates how the NEMAAR grant will be used. If submitted by graduate students, a faculty mentor must be identified. Proposals have a rolling deadline.

Salon Series

A lunch and/or dinner series, held in different parts of the region, focusing on the work of regional authors (these can be works in progress). NEMAAR will provide grants of up to $400 to help support related costs. Proposals should be sent to [\[redacted\]](mailto: [redacted]). This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it, and should include a title, abstract, list of authors and/or facilitators, schedule, contact person, and a budget that indicates how the NEMAAR grant will be used. If submitted by graduate students, a faculty mentor must be identified. Proposals have a rolling deadline.

If you have an idea that is not listed here but that you feel is consistent with the above mentioned

2011 New England-Maritimes Regional Meeting
March 17–18, 2011
Hyatt Regency New Brunswick
New Brunswick, NJ, USA
Call for Papers

Dear Colleagues,

We encourage you to submit proposals for the 2011 joint regional meeting of the Mid-Atlantic and New England–Maritimes Regions, to be held on March 17–18, 2011. As is customary for the Mid-Atlantic Region, once again we will be meeting with the Mid-Atlantic Region of the Society for Biblical Literature (MAR–SBL). Based upon the very large turnout for the last meeting, the MAR–AAR Executive Committee has once again selected the Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Brunswick, New Jersey, as our venue. The New Brunswick Hyatt is three blocks from the local Amtrak station, nineteen miles from Newark International Airport, and thirty miles from New York City.

The theme for the 2011 conference is “Religion and Embodiment.” Our three plenary speakers for this year will address this theme from diverse perspectives.

Miguel De La Torre is a ~~liberating biblical theologian (Dallas, 2007) & Theology Among the Poor~~

Marie Griffith is the John ~~Barth Lecturer in Theology (Dallas, 2007) & Theology Among the Poor~~

Kieran Scott is an associate ~~professor of Religion (Dallas, 2007) & Theology Among the Poor~~

We invite scholarly proposals in any of the subject areas listed below. For any Section without a specific focus in its call for papers, check the AAR website in the near future for more details on proposal specifications for those sections. We also invite proposals for panels given by members of the AAR.

Conference Sections and Conveners:

Christian History and Theology

Shannon McAlister, Catholic University of America, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it.

Patricia Appelbaum, Springfield College, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it.

Dan McClain, Catholic University of America, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section invites proposals for a special panel relating this year's regional conference topic of religion and embodiment to the history of Christianity and Christian theology, pre-1900. We are particularly interested in proposals that: 1) Explore the way the body has been treated in Christian literature and practice, the dichotomy between mind/spirit/soul and body, and how that dichotomy has been embraced or resisted in Christian thought; 2) The Iconoclastic Controversy; 3) Embodiment and sacraments; and 4) Patricia Cox Miller's The Corporeal Imagination: Signifying the Holy in Late Ancient Christianity (University of Pennsylvania Press, 2009) or other recent scholarly work on embodiment in the history of Christianity and/or Christian theology. Other proposals not relating to this year's conference theme, but related to the history of Christianity (pre-1900), are invited as well.

Contemporary Theology (Nineteenth Century to Present)

Mike Canaris, Fordham University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

East Asian Religion

Hyun Choo, State University of New York, Stony Brook, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

History of Christianity

Franklin Harkins, Fordham University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section welcomes paper proposals on any aspect of medieval Christian thought and practice, particularly those related to religion and embodiment.

Medieval Studies

Marc Beard, Gettysburg College, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

Pedagogy

Catherine Martin, College of Saint Elizabeth, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section critically examines the scholarship of teaching and learning appropriate for the study of religion. We especially invite presentations that model the combination of innovative teaching practice with the scholarship of pedagogy. In consideration of this year's meeting theme, we especially welcome the following topics: 1) Ways in which the body has been presented in religious studies; 2) Ways in which the embodied nature of the instructor and/or student has been considered within the learning environments of religious studies; 3) Considerations of embodiment in virtual religious studies; and 4) Embodied ritual practices that create us and sustain us before, during, and/or after class. You may, however, submit a paper on any topic related to this Section's general focus.

Philosophy of Religion

Mikhail Sergeev, University of the Arts, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it or This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

Psychology and Religion

Aron Dunlap, Temple University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section welcomes papers on the broad range of issues that come under this heading, and especially papers addressing the conference theme of religion and embodiment. We would also like to encourage interdisciplinary papers that make forays into psychoanalysis, philosophy, and social theory.

Religion and the Arts

Johanna Monighan-Schaefer, Dickinson College, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

Alisa Braun, Hebrew College, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

Religion and Ethics

Carole Craven, Won Institute of Graduate Studies, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

Matthew Foster, Molloy College, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section invites papers that explore current ethical issues from the perspective of one or more religious traditions, or which examine some aspect of religious behavior from any of a variety of ethical perspectives. We encourage papers in environmental ethics and interreligious dialogue, and welcome papers related to the conference theme of religion and embodiment. Our goal is to present creative scholarly papers on issues where religion and ethics intersect, and to stimulate lively and productive discussions.

Religion, Gender, and Sexuality

Jea Sophia Oh, Drew University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section explores the intersection between religion and perspectives on gender and sexuality. Papers on the theme of “gender justice, sexuality justice” are invited, but quality papers on all topics in religion, gender, and sexuality are welcome. We are particularly interested in proposals that are related to one of the following themes: 1) Issues of gender and sexuality in interreligious dialogue; 2) Feminist approaches in comparative theology; 3) Postcolonial and poststructural issues in gender studies; 4) Gender issues and multiple religious identities or religious hybridity; and 5) Sexuality, nonhuman nature, and religion from interdisciplinary perspectives and approaches, including “othering” and ecotheological perspectives. We encourage submissions by scholars of all sexual identities (including those who are heterosexually identified), multiple disciplines, religious traditions, and perspectives.

Religion in America

Angela Harkins, Fairfield University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

Religion in India

Lavanya Vemsani, Shawnee State University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section invites proposals on traditional and popular religions in India. Papers are especially welcome on this year's theme of religion and embodiment. Please submit a 250-word proposal on any aspect of religious practice or theology relating to the embodiment practices of one or more religious traditions of India to be considered for presentation at this year's conference. However, we also welcome papers on any aspect of religious practice in India.

Religion, Pop Culture, and Media

James Siburt, Alvernia University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section is dedicated to the scholarly exploration of religious expression in a variety of popular culture phenomena. We encourage multidisciplinary scholarship and are committed to taking popular culture seriously as an arena of religious and theological reflection and practice. We strongly encourage creative multimedia presentations that provide alternatives to the conventional reading of conference papers. We are looking for the exploration of the intersections of religion and popular culture in various contemporary media. Presentations might examine the following areas: 1) Web and new media — YouTube, virtual worlds, multiplayer games, etc.; 2) Comic books, graphic novels, manga, etc.; 3) Cinema and television — auteur theory, drama, sitcom, science fiction, fantasy, etc.; 4) Practicing religion in the age of media; 5) Games and toys — video, board, role-playing, etc.; 6) Music — cover art, lyrics, videos, web sites, etc.; and 7) The relationship between any of the above. We will also consider other related areas.

Scriptural Reasoning

Anna Moreland, Villanova University, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .
Jacob Goodson, College of William and Mary, This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it .

This Section gathers Jewish, Christian, and Muslim thinkers for the study of scriptural texts that speak to themes of contemporary importance. Papers should examine brief scriptural passages (drawing on both textual scholarship and reception history) and suggest how they address contemporary readers' concerns. Participants will be asked to circulate drafts in advance and revise their papers in conversation with each other. At least one session will include textual study in small groups. We invite paper or panel proposals concerning embodiment and religion, ethics and performance, and scriptural reasoning methodology. We welcome proposals on other topics as well and encourage complete panel proposals.

Proposal Submission

Please send proposals by e-mail attachment to the Section Chair(s) for the Section to which you are applying no later than Friday, November 19, 2010. You may submit no more than one proposal to an AAR section at this regional meeting, although MAR–AAR members who are also members of MAR–SBL may also submit a second proposal for a SBL session.

Note about Registration Fees for Non-Presenters

Conference attendees who are not presenting may register at a discounted rate of $30. Note that presiding at a session is not considered presenting, and non-presenters who volunteer to preside at sessions will still be charged this discounted rate of $30. Both presenters and non-presenters are encouraged to volunteer to preside at sessions. The preregistration form below has an area that you may check off if you are interested in presiding at a session.

Mid-Atlantic Regional Awards

As has become our custom, MAR–AAR will award the Kate Connolly-Weinert Prize of $200 to the most innovative group session (or panel) dealing with peace issues or women's studies. The deadline for submission is November 5, 2010. Applicants should send their proposals to the appropriate Section Chair.

To help foster graduate student participation, the Executive Committee of the MAR–AAR will again award the Robert F. Streetman Prize of $200 for the best student paper presented at the conference by an AAR regional member. Those interested in the Streetman prize should submit their entire paper by February 18, 2011, to the appropriate Section Chair and clearly indicate they are submitting the paper for prize consideration.

New England–Maritimes Regional Awards

To help foster graduate student participation, the Executive Committee of the New England–Maritimes Region will again bestow the NEMAAR Graduate Student Awards for Excellence for the three best student papers presented at the conference by a NEMAAR regional member. Those interested in applying for the awards should submit their entire papers by February 18, 2011, to Rebecca Sachs Norris at rsachs@nemaar.org. This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it and clearly indicate on the submission sheet that they are submitting the paper for NEMAAR award consideration. You are required to be registered for the conference in order to be considered for the awards. If you have a serious difficulty with this deadline please contact us at that address – we may be able to grant extensions under some conditions.

Preregistration

Online preregistration is now available through the AAR website . Please utilize the AAR website for registration, as it saves paper and helps the region fulfill our national AAR mandate to promote environmentally sustainable gatherings. If you choose to preregister for the meeting using a paper form, please complete the PDF form and return it by mail no later than March 1, 2011.

The Hyatt Regency is offering online hotel room registration for the MAR/NEMAAR regional meeting. In order to receive the discounted conference rate when booking online, you must reserve your room through this website and NOT through the general Hyatt website.

Alternatively you may call Hyatt Central Reservations at 888-421-1442 to reserve rooms. Please indicate that you are attending our conference so that you can receive the conference rate. Discounted single and double-occupant hotel rooms ($109 plus state and local taxes) will be held until March 1, 2011. After that date, normal hotel rates will apply. Since only fifty discounted rooms have been reserved for Wednesday, March 16, and Thursday, March 17, and fifteen discounted rooms have been reserved for Friday, March 18, we strongly encourage you to reserve your room early. Parking is available at the Hyatt for conference participants at a discounted rate of $6 a day.

If you are looking for a roommate for the conference, please contact NEMAAR at This e-mail address is being protected from spambots. You need JavaScript enabled to view it . All we can offer in this regard is to pass on contact information.

Sustainability

As part of the American Academy of Religion's commitment to host environmentally-sustainable meetings, we are asking participants to consider bringing reusable beverage containers and name badge holders from previous conferences in order to cut down on waste at the conference.

For any ongoing updated conference information please consult our website at http://www.aarweb.org/About_AAR/Regions/Mid-Atlantic

. Information will be posted as it is available during the upcoming academic year.
